

True Patriot Love

The recent threat to our men and women in uniform on our own soil has brought to light the critical challenges that our military families face due to the unique conditions of their service. Your support is needed more than ever to provide soldiers and their families with resources that can ensure their well-being and mental health, whether they continue to serve or return to civilian life. As Canadians, we have a deep pride in our military and the work they do, and now more than ever, we need to show these men and women our support and commitment.

Over the past five years, the True Patriot Love Foundation has raised over $18 million to fund military programs, charities and causes that assist military families when and where the needs are greatest. I encourage you to consider donating this holiday season to the True Patriot Love Foundation who will ensure these families receive the care and support they deserve.
